The National Business Aviation Association's (NBAA's) 2015 Business Aviation Convention & Exhibition (NBAA2015) closed today in Las Vegas, NV, and the event organizers report that the show was once again a resounding success for attendees and exhibitors alike.

"This year's show was enormously successful," said NBAA President and CEO Ed Bolen. "In addition to the strong participation from exhibitors and attendees alike, our industry's largest event once again showcased the size and significance of the business aviation community, as well as the passion and professionalism of its people."

NBAA's 2015 convention, which took place from Nov. 17 to 19, featured more than 1,100 exhibitors in the Las Vegas Convention Center, and more than 27,000 attendees. Additionally, about 100 aircraft were displayed in several locations – at a sold-out static display at Henderson Executive Airport, at an indoor display inside the convention center and at various exhibitor booths on the convention hall floor. Attendees from the show represented all 50 U.S. states, and 96 countries.
