

EMBRAER BRINGING A STRONG PRESENCE TO THE PARIS AIR SHOW SUPPORTED BY SALES MOMENTUM AND POSITIVE RESULTS

News / Events / Festivals, Manufacturer

Embraer once again keeps its strong presence at the Paris Air Show showcasing its cutting-edge portfolio for commercial aviation, defense, services & support and Urban Air Mobility market driven by a strong sales momentum in all business. The biennial event, which takes place from June 16 to 22, at the Paris-Le Bourget airport, will have among its highlights on static display the E195-E2, the world's most efficient small narrowbody jet, the KC-390 Millennium multi-mission airlifter and tanker, and the A-29 Super Tucano light attack and advanced trainer. The E195-E2 and the KC-390 will also take part in the flight display.

At the airshow, Embraer's subsidiary Eve will also present updates about the eVTOL aircraft project and the development of its comprehensive portfolio of agnostic services and operations solutions for the Urban Air Mobility ecosystem.

rancisco Gomes Neto, Presidente and CEO at Embraer commented: “We are very happy to be at the Paris Air Show again, since Le Bourget has been Embraer’s home for over 40 years. Our solid presence in Europe demonstrates our commitment to develop strong collaboration within the continent, and the Paris Air Show is a great stage to reinforce that. We are ready to contribute even more with our European partners in the field of civil aviation and defense capabilities as well as industry, technological development and innovation.”

Embraer activities in Europe spread across production of major aircraft parts, support of more than 700 aircraft currently in operation, partnerships with an extremely diversified supply chain, and numerous cooperations in technology development involving both private and public sectors, creating high value-added jobs and wealth all over the continent and assisting European nations in their sovereignty.
